

Proactive Release

The following document has been proactively released by the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet (DPMC), on behalf of Rt Hon Christopher Luxon, Prime Minister:

100-Day Plan

The following documents have been included in this release:

Title of paper: 100-Day Plan (CAB-23-SUB-0468 refers)

Title of minute: 100-Day Plan (CAB-23-MIN-0468 refers)

Some parts of this information release would not be appropriate to release and, if requested, would be withheld under the Official Information Act 1982 (the Act). Where this is the case, the relevant section of the Act that would apply has been identified. Where information has been withheld, no public interest has been identified that would outweigh the reasons for withholding it.

COALITION GOVERNMENT 100-DAY PLAN

Proposal

1. This paper agrees the Coalition Government's 100-Day Plan and seeks the first decisions necessary to deliver its commitments.

Coalition Government 100-Day Plan

2. This paper marks a significant milestone. It seeks agreement to our 100-Day Plan, with 49 commitments to begin delivering better outcomes for all New Zealanders. The initiatives will contribute to our goals to:
  1. Rebuild the economy and ease the cost of living.
  2. Restore law and order.
  3. Deliver better public services.
3. There are 100 calendar days from today (29 November) to 8 March 2024. I want us to focus intently as a government over that period on delivery of our Plan, plus a small number of other actions that are critical to delivery of our wider commitments, such as our fiscal approach.
4. The proposed 100-Day Plan is set out in the table at the end of this paper. It includes the key next steps and the lead portfolio for each commitment. Some decisions we can take now, meaning agencies can get on with implementation immediately. In many other cases ministers will need to return to Cabinet to seek further policy decisions and approval for legislation.
5. Concurrently, we will develop targets for public services which can help us to maintain momentum at the end of the 100-day period. I propose to return to Cabinet in December with a proposal to develop targets.

Implementation

6. Phasing will be important within our 100 days, especially for legislative changes, to ensure we are making best use of limited House time and PCO resources. There are over a dozen actions where we have committed to introducing legislation in the first 100 days, three of which involve enactment before Christmas. My office, DPMC and PCO will work with the Leader of the House, ministers and agencies to ensure efficient scheduling, taking into account the time sensitivity and complexity of the initiatives.
7. I plan to establish a 100-Day Plan Committee (100 Day Committee) which will meet weekly until mid-March to take decisions and track progress against our commitments. I intend to include the commitments in my portfolio priorities letters to ministers to reinforce my expectations about the priority to be given to this work. I also plan to meet with ministers at the end of the 100 days to discuss portfolio priorities for the first year and review performance against the 100 Day Plan milestones.

8. The 100 Day Committee can also be used for policy discussions on commitments that would benefit from wider testing before the production of a paper for decisions.
9. DPMC will convene the agencies responsible for delivering the 100-Day Plan to ensure traction and alignment between the public service and ministers. I understand the Public Service Commissioner is planning to write to relevant Chief Executives to underline the importance of delivery of the Plan, including reflecting the stop work notices.

Financial implications

10. Where actions in the 100-Day Plan deliver savings, including work on social insurance and the Lake Onslow hydro scheme, these should be returned to the centre to help fund our priorities. The mechanism for tracking progress in returning savings will be included in the Minister of Finance's report to Cabinet on 11 December requested in the table below. I expect that 100-Day Plan proposals will identify how any additional costs required might be funded within baselines.
11. The tools for fiscal control have not been exercised in the last six years. We need to drive up public sector value on an ongoing basis. To restore fiscal stewardship, I will be working closely with the Minister of Finance to strengthen the disciplines and controls on public sector agencies. I expect ministers to work closely with Chief Executives to ensure a more disciplined approach to expenditure is embedded in the public sector.

Legislative implications

12. Many of our 100-Day Plan initiatives will require legislation, however, there are no direct legislative implications from the proposals in this paper.

Impact Analysis

Regulatory Impact Statement

13. The commitments in the Plan have been well canvassed with the public as part of the election process. I therefore propose we streamline the process for Regulatory Impact Statements (RISs) by exempting them from the normal QA process, and not requiring RISs when we are simply repealing legislation. However, agencies will be required to complete post-implementation assessments where we are implementing new policy initiatives. Where agencies are preparing RISs, they should focus on cost benefit analysis and implementation issues where they cannot complete a full RIS in the time available.
14. Today's decisions include further work to change legislation or regulations therefore regulatory impact analysis is not required at this stage.

Climate Implications of Policy Assessment

15. There are no CIPA-relevant implications from the proposals in this paper.

Population Implications

16. Our focus on our priority areas will benefit all New Zealanders.

Human Rights

17. There are no direct implications for the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act or the Human Rights Act from the decisions we are taking today. Future report backs, particularly on the law and order proposals, will consider any rights implications.

Use of External Resources

18. No external resources were used in the production of this Cabinet paper.

Consultation

19. This paper was drafted by DPMC officials. Departments were consulted on the matters relevant to them. I consulted with ministers responsible for 100-Day Plan initiatives and with coalition partners.

Communications

20. I plan to announce these first decisions in the coming days.

Proactive Release

21. I intend to proactively release this paper and the Cabinet minute, subject to any necessary redactions, within 30 business days of Cabinet's decisions.

Recommendations

22. The Prime Minister recommends that Cabinet:

100 Day Plan

1. Agree the Coalition Government's 100-Day Plan to begin delivering better outcomes for New Zealanders, as set out in the table below;
2. Agree to the lead portfolios and the actions for each commitment, as set out in the table below;
3. Note that 100 days from today (29 November) is 8 March;
4. Note the Prime Minister's expectations that ministers will:
  - 4.1. Focus intently on delivery of the 100-Day Plan across this period;
  - 4.2. Ensure a more disciplined approach to expenditure is embedded in the public sector by working closely with Chief Executives;

Implementation

5. Note that the 100-Day Plan Committee (100 Day Committee) will meet weekly until mid-March to take decisions and track progress;
6. Note that, to support the Government to deliver its commitments, the Prime Minister has directed DPMC to:
  - 6.1. Provide a report on progress towards achieving the 100-Day Plan for each 100 Day Committee meeting;

- 6.2. Provide policy support to ministers and departments, including coordination between ministers and departments, and lead Central Agency teams' engagement with line agencies;
- 6.3. Chair a group of the relevant departmental Deputy Chief Executives focused on delivery of the 100-Day Plan to help resolve any issues across the public sector that might hinder delivery;
- 6.4. Check in with departmental Chief Executives periodically on progress towards achieving the plan;
7. Agree to streamline the process for 100-Day Plan initiatives with Regulatory Impact Statements by:
  - 7.1. Exempting them from the normal QA process;
  - 7.2. Exempting them from providing RISs when we are repealing legislation and not seeking approval for new policy;
  - 7.3. Requiring agencies, where we are implementing new policy, to complete post-implementation assessments for regulatory proposals;
8. Note that the Leader of the House will determine the legislative programme, and advise ministers when legislation they are responsible for must be ready for introduction into the House;
9. Invite the Prime Minister to bring a paper to Cabinet in December with a proposal to develop targets; and
10. Note that the Prime Minister intends to announce the decisions in this paper in the coming days.
